President Was Right To Change His Mind

American construction workers need more power to picket about as much as John F. Kennedy needed more mistresses.

It's rapidly becoming obvious that had not his World War II wounds accounted for the late President's sore back, his prodigious sexual exercise would have.

So it has been for generations with the U.S. construction industry. No other trade has been so beset with union goon squads, gold-bricking and even syndicate extortion.

These are facts that have driven construction costs sky high and put single family dwellings out of the reach of all but affluent Americans.

Contruction workers don't need more picketing power; they need to be stripped of some that they already have. Congressional passage of the "common situs" picketing bill is, therefore, not only ridiculous but downright outrageous.

The nation can be thankful President Ford says he intends to veto the bill. Otherwise, say goodbye to decent housing and industrial plants that can be built at costs low enough to meet foreign competition.

The bill allows unions to picket an entire construction site even though their dispute is with only one subcontractor. Two or three disgruntled

Money Talks, Advertisers Prove

Advertisers spent over $26 billion in 1974 to promote their products, according to the Conference Board. About $14 billion was spent on national advertising and $12 billion was spent locally. Newspapers received $8 billion of the total budget and television received $5 billion. The smallest amount of the advertising budget -$1.5 billion — was spent on magazines.

representatives of a minor trade union could close a multi-million-dollar construction project.

The blackmail potential in the common situs measure is staggering.

President Ford's own Secretary of Labor, John T. Dunlop, drafted the bill. He is an economist who has spent 30 years arbitrating and mediating labor disputes. But to say that Dunlop is truly the author of common situs, or that he originated the idea, is misleading.

Big Labor bosses have been trying to get common situs enacted into law for 25 years. Secretary Dunlop just put their ideas into words in an effort that he hoped might bring some order to the construction industry's labormanagement relations.

How it would do that is difficult to see. Most every contractor and objective observer of the construction trade prédicts common situs will bring

President Ford apparently agreed to sign the common situs bill as Secretary Dunlop was drafting it. But the uproar it created in the industry and among conservative elements of the general public caused Ford to take a second look. He announced last week he has changed his mind. He'll veto

Ralph Waldo Emerson would have praised the President, were the New England essayist alive today. "Consistency," said Emerson, "is the hob-goblin of little minds."

Americans interested in preserving freedom of enterprise should back Ford's changed decision to the hilt."

The President's initial view of common situs was gravely in error; he had the wisdom and the courage to change his mind.

His Labor Secretary may quit as a result. And the AFL-CIO's crusty George Meany may resign from the President's Labor-Management Advisory Committee.

MORE ON GUNS AND 'NEUROSES'

Editor A recent letter writer used the "neurosis" in association with gun ownership, and another writer gave a very good answer by saying, in effect, Speak for yourself when it comes to neuroses." Let's carry that a little farther.

Guns were designed for the purpose of giving the bearers the power to kill at a distance, or at least to set up small areas in which individuals are able to exercise coercive force. Right there is where talk about mind imbalance is more appropriate than the anti-gun people — generally "Liberals" — realize.

There's got to be two-way trust for an open society to keep going. The person who is willing to put all coercive force into the hands of government police, while not willing to trust his next door neighbor with a .22 pisfol, would seem to have some way to go in sorting things out. Possibly there's an irrational fear of the unknown and unpredictable involved. The world after all is a mighty complex creation, and one of the most unpredictable elements in it is the free individual who fears no one but God

The aforementioned areas, in which the keeping of arms gives equal coercive power; must of necessity be areas compromise among equals. This awareness of equality becomes second nature to the best of outdoorsmen, and can lead to a deferential, even reverent appreach to all living things and all forces of nature

On the other hand, there's the kind of mind which apparently can't tolerate unpredictable and unknown entities. Deal with all individuals as self-motivated equals? That would be too much of a threat. Far better to get the illusion of complete control, even if a disarmed citizenry and world concentration camp system are needed to get it. So goes the "Liberal" mind, It looks as though a struggle to enjoy freedom under God, much like the struggle that took place 200 years ago, has to be gone through again.

One further item: particular tricks to watch out for are simple assertions such as, "The second amendment obviously applies to militias only." It does nothing of the sort, as both historical fact and a reading of the amendment show. The historical fact is that Americans. at the time of writing of the amendment, owned and kept firearms in their homes. A reading of the second amendment makes plain that a well regulated militia (not a National Guard) is obtained as a sort of by-product of this right of the people to keep and bear arms.

Ford's Stocking

WASHINGTON - Ho, ho, ho. Tis the season to be jolly, but not if your name is Gerald Ford. At this time last year, the President was riding (or more precisely, skiing) high, the beneficiary of immense national optimism and relief at being rid of the crook.

But in 12 months he has proven so amateurish in the job, so unwilling to expand his input and ideas, that Santa Claus should put only a lump of coal in his stocking.

In fact, lumps are what he has been getting most of lately. A single day last week illustrates President this holiday season. On that day, Dec. 18, a lot of things happened to indicate the President is not quite in charge of the country. And it was not an atypical day.

The big news was that Congress failed to override his veto of tax-cut legislation, leaving him unexpectedly in the position of taking the blume for lax increases in an election year. He had counted on an override so that he could still have the cost-cutting issue but not be stuck with the tax hike. He was so outmaneuvered that the very next day he signed a hasty tax-cut bill that was identical to the first except for some vague language promising future budget cuts. He looked stupid, or duplicatous, or both.

to the fighting that's going on in Angol,

Says Forbes: "A couple of years back, Chase Manhattan, First National City and other major U.S. banks were tripping over one another to lend (money) to Zaire, the former Belgian Congo. After all, the price of copper was $1.52 a pound. Even the notoriously wasteful men running Zaire couldn't go broke with prices like that for a major export.

"But the price of copper didn't just fall; it collapsed to around 55 cents. Predictably, Zaire, which is perhaps best remembered by the public for spending $10 million to stage the Ali-Foreman fight last year, is now defaulting on its bank loans about as fast as they come."

So what impact does that have on our Big Thinkers in Washington? Forbes describes it this way:

"Over Congressional opposition, the Administration is readying an $81 million aid package for the troubled central African state. Even if Congress rejects the plan, the Administration seems determined to advance at least $49 million at its own discretion." Forbes then asks:

"Whey are we bailing out the poorly managed African state?" And it answers its own question: "One possible explanation for our 'warm spot' for (President) Mobutu is his activities in Angola, his next-door neighbor.'

Mobutu is supposed to be anti-communist. But who really knows; the country is so mixed up.

One other possible explanation for bank-rolling Mobutu just might be that taxpayers are being misused to bail out some New York bankers who have influence at the White House.

The Golden Period For Whiplash Injuries

kerman Chiropractic Center. has a strong appeal to accident victims to make them aware of the importance of immediate modern chiropractic examination for whiplash injuries. ln a statement Dr. Ackerman noted that the first three weeks after a whiplash injury could be called the "golden period of treatment" "If individuals would only realize proper care and treatment Dr. Vince Ackerman of a whiplash injury can of-ten save a person a life-time of pain and discomfort."

"You must remember," says Dr. Ackerman, "that a whiplash injury doesn't al-ways manifest itself until 48 hours or more after an accident. Often a victim is 'stunned' right after an accident and doesn't note any of the whiplash effects. However, after a night's sleep, or even longer, he will usually experience a stiffness or soreness in the neck. This could be considered a positive tip-off of a whiplash injury."

"Of course," adds Dr.
Ackerman, "the whiplash symptoms can be present right away."

The most prevalent symp-toms are the stiffness and tenderness in the neck and leadaches. There can also be nausea, blackouts, dizztness and visual disturbances.
"And," he notes, "in better than 50 per cent of the cases there is low back pain."

"Technically says Dr. Ackerman, "a whip-lash neck injury is the involuntary thrust of the head and neck in any direction, and the resulting elastic recoil of the head and neck in the opposite direction, with injury you require additional medical to the surrounding and supporting tissues."

The common causes are auto collision, a sudden jerk blow in the head or chin, a reflex jerking of the head due 1700.) to fright or sudden noise, or any kind of a fall that causes forceful movement of the head and neck.

"Incindently," Dr. Ackerman points out, "the research council of the U.S. Air Force has demonstrated that the normal neck can withstand a forward snapping fifty times the force of gravity before producing a major injury but only a backward snapping of five times the force of gravity can be tolerated." It also shoud be noted that the elasticity of the neck structures decreases with advancing age. "In general;" says Dr. Ackerman "the older the victim the more likelihood of injury and through whiplash."

The complications of whiplash injuries are many and varied. Strains, fractures, nerve muscle spasms, injuries ruptured disc nerve spiral cord injury that stretches into a joint usually threatens the joints with traumatic arthritis," says Dr. Ackerman.

"Ail too frequently an ald whiplash injury comes back to haunt a person if he has not recived pro er care and treatment following the in-jury," says Dr. Ackerman. When we say there is a 'golden period' after a whiplash we mean just that. It's the one and only 'golden opportunity' for proper care, treatment and correction."

With regard to treatment of injuries it should be re-membered that more than 700 leading insurance companies recognize chiropractic care as practiced at the Ackerman Chiropractic Center. includes automobile liability, medical pay and on-the-job injuries covered by workmen's compensation.

When shoud you investigate the possibility of a whiplash?

After any accident or any time you experience a soreness or stiffness in the neck you should consult the Ackerman Chiropractic . Center. Angola Fund Cut Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) - By cutting off further funds to factions fighting in Angola, the Senate has saved the United States from embroiling itself in a "no-win situation" in the African country, says the ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., also said today that cutting off funds to anti-Soviet factions in Angola will work against the Russians, who are heavily backing one of the groups fighting for control of the newly independent country.

"Our strategic interests are best served by leaving the Russians exposed high and dry as the major force intervening in Africa," Case said in a sta-

Course To Examine Life Ethics

DOWAGIAC — The question of when life-sustaining equipment should be turned off is one of severai scientific dilemmas to be examined in a month-long biology course at Southwestern Michigan college here. The course, "Social Problems of Biological Origin," is one of 40 credit and non-credit courses being offered at SMC during its month-long interim session beginning Jan. 5. Those completing the course will earn two hours of college credit, according to school officials.

Other ethical problems caused by scientific know-how to be examined in the course include test-tube babies, genetic engineering and screening, embryo transplants, the right to life and death, and cloning, which is defined as making copies of a single individual.

Registration for interim courses will be under way from Monday, Dec. 29, through Friday, Jan. 2.

However, the registration office will be closed Wednesday afternoon and all day Thursday for the New Year's holiday. The interim session, which ends on Jan. 26, serves as both a catch-up session and as an introduction to college study, school officials said. Both day and evening classes are offered.

Tuition for the classes will be the same as for a regular SMC semester.

STICKING TOGETHER: Daniel and Ruth Slater of Muskegon are parents of four children, Daniel, 19, (not shown), Michael, 15 (standing), Becky, 17, and Donald, 6. Both Donald and Becky are mentally retarded. (AP Wirephoto)

Patience Sustains Parents Of Two Mongoloid Children

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — When Ruth Slater was told her son was a Mongoloid, all she could think of was idiocy something frightening and possibly uncontrollable.

The Slater's son, Donald, is finow, a cute, self-functioning little boy. He's one of the six million persons in the United States who are mentally retard-

And he was the second mentally relarded child to be born to the Slaters, something they never thought would happen to them twice.

"II we can help somebody else, then I guess that's all that's important;" Mrs. Slater said when she agreed to tell their story.

They know how lonely it can be without support from parents of other retarded children. Becky was the Slater's second.

"I knew there was something wrong. She didn't cry. But she was such a beautiful, bright baby. When they said she was brain damaged, I just wouldn't accept it." An Ann Arbor doctor told the Slaters Becky's central nervous never developed

Meanwhile, their son Michael, who is now 15, came along, a perfectly normal little boy growth accentuated

"It takes time," said Donald Slater, the husband and father. "It takes time to accept it. You really have to wait until you're ready to accept it." In Becky's case, that took five or six years.
The Slaters spent money going to doctors, they spent more money enrolling Booky at the Children Center when she was school age, because the public school could offer no help back

The Slaters didn't plan on having another child, although they had no reason to believe they shouldn't have any more children.

When Donald was born, the doctors apparently knew almost right away he was a Mongoloid.

Mongoloid actually is a slang form for a child suffering from Bown's Syndrome, a form of retardation

Mongoloid has nothing to do with the severity of the retardation, but many seem automatically to connect it with the most severe defects.

Mongoloids look different. They often have slanted eyes, rings under their eyes, a straight line across their palm. The slanted eyes give some resemblence to the Asian race, known as Mongols, giving the slang term its meaning.

Often, the babies suffer physical ailments, including heart disease, causing them to dle young. But the retardation itself does not cause early death.

Donald suffered collapse, and the doctors who treated him spotted the dymdrome right away. Mrs. Slater had to tell her husband chairman of the Senate intelligence committee says the murder of CIA agent Richard Welch should not curtail congressional efforts to investigate U.S. intelligence agen-

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Sunday that "this regrettable event must not be used as an excuse to curtail the effort by the Congress to expose improper activities" within the intelligence community.

Welch, head of CIA operations in Greece, was murdered last Tuesday by three gunmen who shot him as he emerged from his home with his wife.

In a statement, Church rejected as "totally unfounded" any suggestion that the investigation by his panel had anything to do with the death of the CIA agent.

He said it had been the practice of his committee not to obtain the names of CIA agents involved in overseas operations, Church made the comments in reaction to remarks by former CIA agent Mike Ackerman, who charged that Congress must share in the blame for Welch's death.

Ackerman, a former CIA case worker who left the agency last May, said the intelligence committee headed by Church should have conducted its investigation without publicly disclosing CIA

"The gentleman is misinformed, since the committee has made no disclosures of information received from any source that would possibly jeopardize the life of any CIA agent," Church said in a Saturday telephone interview.

But Ackerman said what happened to Welch was "a recurrent nightmare for me for years. Every CIA officer, everywhere in the world, feels this very, very intensely. It's unforgiveable to send officers overseas without adequate protection.'

President Ford also said through his press secretary that he thinks the publication of Welch's name by an Athens newspaper and by the Washington publication "Counterspy" was partly responsible for Welch's death.

Presidential spokesman Ron Nessen said Ford is concerned that the cover of other agents "might have been blown."

easily sifted out, says Liebherr. He adds the Indian meal moth usually enters the home as coldweather arrives, materials which have been opened and have been on the shelf for some time.

-The saw-toothed grain beetle is dark red, only about one-tenth inch long and has six spines on its body.

It likes high-protein fonds flours, grains, raisins, dried fruits, and pet food, and its flat body lets it get in anything not tightly covered.

To get rid of bugs in slightly infected products, spread the product thinly on a cookle sheet and bake in an oven at 130 degrees for a half-hour, he said.

This dark-red to brown bug too will infect products so thoroughly that they should be discarded, Liebherr says. It can be recognized by the elongated shape it rolls into after it's dislurbed.

Two Flint Officers Shoot Each Other

FLINT, Mich. (AP) - The Genesee County prosecutor police today were discussing possible charges that may be filed in a shooting incident between a black policewoman and a white policeman. Police officials said they were baffled by the incident, which ocurred during shift change Saturday. It began with a dispute between the two officers over who would drive a patrol car they were to have shared for the day.

Investigators said race and sex did not appear to be factors in the shooting.

The policewoman - Madeline C. Fletcher. 20 - was under police custody in the intensive care unit at Hurley Medical Center. She suffered a gunshot wound to the chest.

Also hospitalized was Walter Kalberer, 34, an eight-year veteran of the force. He was listed in satisfactory condition with a bullet wound in the left

Police said Kalberer was being guarded after receiving threats from an unknown caller

The shooting was followed by a meeting between Police Chief Herbert Adams and the Flint of Afro-American police, where grievances reportedly were aired.

No condition was given for Miss Fletcher, who was hired under an affirmative action program in 1974 and finished ner one-year probationary period on Dec. 15.

"As far as we can determine now, it was not a racial confrontation or a sexual one, said Capt. William Bannister, commander of the Patrol Bureau. 'It was just a dispute between two officers." City Councilman Chester Simmons said black officers made several general complaints about the police force at a meeting with the chief following the shooting. He called for a probe by the city ombudsman. "From the responses I've gotten from officers I've talked to, there are some problems in the police department that need some quick corrective action, Simmons said. "Those problems haven't DULUTH, Minn. (AP) - Six persons were killed early Sunday when fire erupted at a small resort hotel north of Duluth. They apparently died of smoke inhalation before flames swept through the building, officials said. The victims included three children of the resort's owners and three members of another family. Mr. and Mrs. David Eckman, the resort owners, were out snowmobiling when the fire occurred. Both parents were treated for shock at a Duluth hospital after they discovered the tragedy. The Eckmans had operated the Breezy Point Inn on Island Lake, five miles north of Duluth, for about one year.

Drug Research To Be Updated

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Food and Drug Administration is planning to begin a program to improve quality control on manufacturer-supplied research of new drugs, its director says. Commissioner Alexander Schmidt said Sunday that the program will be in response to allegations that the agency has been given incorrect testing information from companies seeking approval of new drugs. "We are looking at whether there have been simple errors, mechanical errors, computer errors or whether there might have been at times some falsification of the data. The latter, of course, is a serious violation of federal law and we would take appropriate action there," Schmidt said. He added: "I think what we've learned so far is that there is a need for better quality control of these very large, very complicated ... studies and we are instituting a program of better quality control of that

Two Flint Officers Shoot Each Other

FLINT, Mich. (AP) - The Genesee County prosecutor and Flint police today were discussing possible charges that may be filed in a shooting incident between a black policewoman and a white policeman. Police officials said they were baffled by the incident, which ocurred during shift change Saturday. It began with a dispute between the two officers over who would drive a patrol car they were to have shared for the day.

Investigators said race and sex did not appear to be factors in the shooting.

The policewoman - Madeline C. Fletcher, 20 - was under police custody in the intensive care unit at Hurley Medical Center. She suffered a gunshot wound to the chest.

Also hospitalized was Walter Kalberer, 34, an eight-year veteran of the force. He was listed in satisfactory condition with a bullet wound in the left thigh.

Police said Kalberer was being guarded after receiving threats from an unknown caller. The shooting was followed by a meeting between Police Chief

Herbert Adams and the Flint

Society of Afro-American police, where grievances reportedly were aired. No condition was given for Miss Fletcher, who was hired under an affirmative action program in 1974 and finished her one-year probationary period on Dec. 15. "As far as we can determine now, it was not a racial confrontation or a sexual one.'

said Capt. William Bannister, commander of the Patrol Bureau. "It was just a dispute between two officers.' City Councilman Chester Simmons said black officers made several general complaints about the police force at a meeting with the chief were not regular partners but were assigned to share the patrol car for the day. They said Miss Fletcher got behind the wheel of the car and Kalberer tried to remove her forcibly.

Officers said Miss Fletcher then swung her nightstick at Kalberer and he knocked the stick away with his nightstick.

Miss Fletcher then started to walk away, but turned, pulled her .38-caliber revolver and fired two or three times, striking Kalberer once in the leg, police said.

Police said Kalberer fired four times at Miss Fletcher while two of three officers in the area also fired at her. They said they hoped ballistics would determine which officer fired the shot which struck her, but it was not known if any bullets were recovered. Contacted by telephone at

East-West Conflict In Hockey Tourney

DETROIT (AP) — It will be another traditional East-West conflict today and Tuesday in the 11th annual Great Lakes ine i i in annum occup Invitational college hockey tournament at Olympia Stadium.

In today's games, Michigan (9-5) meets Pennsylvania (2-3) in the first match, while defending GLI and NCAA champion Michigan Tech (11-4) faces off against Boston University (4-0) in the second contest.

Down through the GLI's history, teams from the West have dominated, winning eight titles. while East squads have two championships. Michigan Tech owns four of those West titles, while Michigan and Michigan State have one each.

Many of the key figures are back from last year's tour nament. Mike Zuke, who scored the winning goal for the Huskies in the championship game against Michigan last year, is back. So is Robbie Moore, Michigan's star goalie and last year's MVP.

Also adding excitement will be the coaches, John MacInnes, who is in his 20th year at Michigan Tech, and Dan Farrell, now in his third season at U-M after several years as MacInnes' assitant at Tech.

Top-Ranked Indiana Feasts On New York Basketball

College basketball has been trying to rebound for several years in New York City, but it took the Indiana Hoosiers only two days to set it back several

The nation's top-ranked team has made the Holiday Festival Tournament virtually its own, dominating two outclassed New York teams and threatening to wipe out a third.

"They're awesome," says St. John's Coach Low Carnesecca, whose team meets the Big Ten brutes tonight in the finals of the 24th Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden.

The Rednien represent the -bride of New York basketball this year. They're ranked 17th in-the country, have not lost a game in nine starts and figure to give Bobby Knight's monster team more than just token opposition.

But heating the boys from Indiana may be something else.

The Hoosier hotshots hardly broke a sweat while beating Columbia 106-63 and Manhattan 97-61 behind fabulous Scott May in earlier Festival games. St John's, sparked by Frank Alagia, has struggled to beat Temple 67-59 and South Carolina 71-59.

"We can't run with them, says Carnesecca of Indiana, a team whose five starters average 6-feet-7. "If we try, they'll run us right into the East River. But we must play our own game as much as possible, the style that got us here."

The Redmen's game plan is to play a controlled, slowdown ofstressing disciplined ballhandling and no wild shots.

While the country's No. 1 team was zeroing in on the Holiday Festival title in New York, No. 11 Louisville was locking one up at home. The Cardinals defeated Texas A&M 102-88 in the championship game of the Holiday Classic in

We're brewing more Miller High Life Beer than ever. But Americans are also drinking more Miller High Life than ever. In each of the last two years, we've experienced greater sales percentage increases than any other major

We're even building another brewery, our fourth, which will be in operation early next year. There's only one thing we refuse to do. And that's rush our brewing process.

Layoff Hurts Red Wings

Vancouver Downs Sluggish Detroit, 3-2

DETROIT (AP) - Detroit Coach Alex Delvecchio blames an eight day layoff for the Red Wings' failure to take advantage of early scoring opportunities against the Vancover Canucks Sunday night.

"Eight days without a game certainly didn't help," Del-vecchio said following the Canucks 3-2 victory over the Wings. "That's what did it to us. "Going that long without playing a game kills you. I was comething like this was going to happen.

The Red Wings had been scheduled to take on the New York Islanders last Friday but postponed the game because of a snow storm in Detroit. Delvecchie wasn't the only one upset about the missed game, however. Islanders Islanders General Manager Bill Torrey is seething.

"It's questionable the game should have been postponed," Torrey said Sunday. "We were in Detroit and ready to play. I can assure you I'm going to be hard-nosed as hell when it comes to seitling a make-up date. "I'd just as soon take the two points (for a victory) and not play the game. It would save us a lot of time and money."

"We didn't play too bad a-first period," Delvecchio said about Sunday's game with Vancouver. "We had two lapses to give them easy goals in the

Garry Monahan snapped a scoreless tie with a secondperiod goal and ignited the Canucks three-goal spurt

The victory increased Vanconver's second-place margin over St. Louis to three points in the NHL Smythe Division and moved the Canucks to within nine points of first-place

The loss was the third in a row for the Red Wings.

Don Lever and Bobby LaLonde also scored in the middle period to give Vancouver what seemed to be a safe 3-0 lead.

But Nick Libett scored a power play goal at 5:35 of the third to give Detroit a surge. Then Dan Maloney beat Vancouver goalie Gary Smith side the blue line at 9:15 as his mates were killing off a penalty to stir the 10,117 fans who were hoping for a comeback.

Two Red Wing penalties to Mike Korney and Bryan Watson in the last seven minutes eased the pressure and enabled Vancouver to withstand Detrolt's desperation thrust in the few seconds for a deadlock.

The game was enlivened by a fight between Gregg Boddy of Vancouver and Detroit rookie Dennis Polonich at the close of the second period. Boddy suffered a broken nose and was taken to a Detroit hospital for repairs.

Dickey Worrying About Injuries

Florida Favored By One TD

By F.T. MACFEELY

Associated Press Writer JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - While they await the 9:10 p.m. EST kickoff in tonight's 31st annual Gator Bowl football game, Coaches Doug Dickey of 13th-ranked Florida and Jerry 17th-rated things to occupy their minds.

Dickey worries whether two defensive regulars, tackte Darrell Carpenter and end Joe Allen, will recover from ankle. sprains in time.

Carpenter stepped in a hole on an unfamiliar practice field

Friday a short time after Allen tripped on a motel staircase. The two players have had their bad ankles packed in ice to reduce swelling, and doctors said only time will tell if they can play. Claiborne's concern is more pleasant. He is making up his mind whether to start Larry Dick or Mark Manges at quar-

Dick is better at passing and Manges better at running from Maryland's I formation. They have shared the job through an Florida is a one-touchdown favorite. The Gators finished in a tie for second in the tough Southeastern Conference and wound up with a 9-2 record after two close losing Maryland won the Atlantic Coast Conference cham-

"I don't think there's any question Doug's team should be favored," Claiborne said. "Florida is ranked higher than we are, they have a better record and, I think Doug would agree, more quality players."

The Maryland coach termed his Terrapins a no-name team that won't have many players drafted by the pros although seven were named to the AllACC team. Five are on the defensive unit, not surprising since Maryland ranked 12th nationally on defense.

Florida, running from a wishbone offense led by quar-terback Don Gaffney and fullback Jimmy DuBose, was 12th in the nation on rushing offense. DuBose gained 1,307 yards, only five off the SEC record, and averaged 6.8 a carry.

Dickey tried to escape the role as favorite.

"I look at it as an even game," the Florida coach said. "Most bowl games are. You look at what Maryland's done and what we've done and it's about the same."

The teams met two common foes this season, Against Kentucky. Florida won 48-7 while Maryland had a 10-10 tie. However, against North Carolina State, Florida lost 8-7 and Maryland won 37-22. The last time Maryland and Florida met was in the 1974 regular season. Florida scored a 17-10 upset.

The Gator Bowl game will be televised nationwide by ABC, but there may be a few empty seats in the stadium. A crowd of 65,000 is predicted, about one thousand short of normal capacity and well below the record 72,248 crammed in when Florida edged Tennessee 14-13

St. Thomas, meanwhile returns three starters from last year's 17-3 regular season team, including 6-foot-3 Mark Richard and John Wright, and was 7.0 this season in a bid to stage a rerun of its state title performance of two years ago.

Crystal Falls, 5-1, is ranked No. I in the Upper Peninsula media poll and would like to win back-to-back state titles. Brian LaChapetle, an All-Stater on the championship football squad, knows his way around the hardwood, tou.

AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL TEST: LIFE-DEATH GAME

Associated Press Writer
POMONA, N.J. (AP) — In a darkened room at a federal test facility here, a game of makebelieve is being played which could spell the difference between life and death for airline passengers. Air traffic controller Fred Ranger is seated before a console with a green screen criss-crossed by lines, plane identification numbers and altitudes and the flashing words, "CONFLICT

"CAT 2601, make a 90-degree right turn and descend 1,000 feet," he said into the microphone attached to his headset. "Roger," responded a woman's voice over the intercom.

In a moment, the squiggle that represented airplane CAT 2601 veered to the right and its vector lines moved out of the way of another plane marked CAT 2002 on Ranger's screen. The flashing stopped and the alert sign disappeared.

Ranger proceeded to direct both planes back to a collision course, then moved them away from it again.

None of the action took place in the skies. Ranger was seated in one Federal Aviation Administration lab here, and the woman "pilot" was in an adjacent building at a simulated control panel.

on the 14,000 word computer program that makes "conflict alcrt" possible. The warning flashes automatically when flight patterns indicate that two planes will pass within five miles of each other at about the same altitude.

Ranger is among 40 controllers at the FAA's National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center here who test methods used to direct America's air traffic. The base near Atlantic City employs 1,800 persons in all phases of test work.

The conflict alert system is the one of the newer systems in the FAA's safety network, and a recent rash of near-miss jet collisions has made it one of the most talked about.

The lab here is a mock-up of the 20 Air Route Traffic Control Centers the FAA operates throughout the country to direct truffic between airports.

Unlike their fellow controllers who guide takeoffs and landings from towers at airports, the controllers at these outposts work at consoles like the one manned by Ranger in similar darkened

The area over which Ranger's planes were flying does not exist. It is a mythical region called the "universal data set" that was

The screen technically is not a radar scope, an FAA spokesman explained. It is a televised re-creation of radar soundings filtered through an array of computers.

For the controllers who make split-second decisions on lifeand-death matters, "It's an added safety feature," said Ranger, "It requires no additional workload to the controller. It is a backup tool. I haven't heard a bad word about it yet.'

FAA centers in Memphis, Denver, Kansas City and Fort Worth already have added "conflict alert" systems to their computers' programs. In the wake of five near-misses since Nov. 26, the FAA has stepped up plans to install the program at the other 16 centers by next month, Ranger said.

The system is currently pegged only for flights above 18,000 feet. The FAA requires all planes above that level to fly on Instrument flight plans with a radar beacon and identification number, regardless of the weather. The controllers' job is to keep these flights separated.

The FAA has directed the Kansas City center to experiment for 30 days with conflict alerts down to the 12,500-foot level. A simple change in the computer program could bring the alert system down to ground level, Ranger said. "But we're not sure of the true impact on the computer itself." The computers' memories may not be able to sort out that much data and operate

That is why testing is done over the mythical radar fields here first. "These guys — these mathematicians — can write programs, $$ but the question is, 'Does it really work when we get it?" Ranger CONFLICT ALERT: Air traffic controllers view simulated radar transmission recently as they check a "conflict alert" system that warns when two planes are on collision course. Seated, back to camera, is

U.S. Sends Big Pumps Instruments Are Stolen To Flooded Mines

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - The U.S. government is supplying high-capacity pumps to help pump out the flooded coal mine in northeastern India in which at least 372 trapped miners are feared dead, Minister of Mines Chandrailt Yaday announced today. But it was doubtful that any of the missing men would be found alive Yadav said the pumps were being flown from the United States by Air India, India's international airline. He did not announce how many were being sent or when they would arrive. Earlier he said it would take the five purips or hand at the mine at least 10 days to remove the 110 million gallons of water he estimated were in the flooded shaft.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said "everything humanly possible is being and will be done to rescue the workers" trapped Saturday by an explosion and subsequent flooding in the Chasnala colliery 160 miles northwest of Calcutta.

Officials said Mrs. Gandhi has asked several other countries to send rescue and pumping equipment. But they acknowledged it would be a miracle if any of the men survived.

High-powered pumps sucked water from the mine Sunday while the grieving wives of the trapped men remained at home, certain their husbands were dead

The water temperature was 38 degrees Smiday as scuba divers broke through six inches of ice to clear a path for the swimmers at a private lake.

Lee Hoover, 45, of Lyndhurst, one of the leaders of the organization of swimming instructors and lifeguards, said the roughest part of the icy swim is "walking barefooted in the snow when you get out of the water."

The swimmers take their winter dip to demonstrate their physical fitness and their ability to perform rescues under frigid conditions. No one spends more than 40 seconds in the water.

When they came out of the water, they huddled to sing the polar bear song, which

INVESTORS' GUIDE Liquid Reserves For The Student

Q. There seem to be many ways to maintain liquid reserves these days — Treasury tances, commercial paper. Which is the most liquid and safest? What kind of investment wenid you suggest for a 20year old college student with $39,900 available? The money is not acceded for college costs. A. The most liquid, "dollarsafe" investment, to my way of thinking, is a day-to-day sayings account in a bank insured by FDIC or in a savings and loan insured by FSLIC, I don't see how you can beat that: the money is insured by a government agency and it is there any time you want it.

A Treasury bill is, of course, just as safe — being guaranteed by the U.S. Government. The money can be invested for a week, two weeks, a month or up to a year, with no question but that you will get the face amount of the bill when it comes due. Of course, if you liquidate it before maturity, you will have to take your chances in the marketplace -- although a short-term bill is not going to fluctuate much.

Bankers' acceptances and as the bank and the issuing corporation standing behind

None of these, it seems to me, would be the "ideal" investment for 100 per cent of a young man's money, especially money he does not need now, nor in the foresecable future.

A savings account, of course, is a "must." Part of your funds should always be available for emergency purposes. But at least two-thirds should be invested in high grade, growth-type equities. At 20, you have ears ahead of you in which to hope for economic growth, and time is, perhaps, the most important investment ingredient -once you've selected a quality

Q. We're getting $30 a month. clear, from a rented house. Should we hold on?

A. I have no way of knowing since you don't tell me what the house is worth, how much money you have in it, whether depreciation means anything to you in your tax bracket etc.

Q. What investments would you suggest for a person just

A. Retired at age 55? 60? 75? With wife? With four children

With only Social Security? Or

$25,000 a year pension from former employer? With $5,000 capital? Or with $500,000 capital? Q. I am a lady in my mid-fils. I dropped bite a brokerage firm to ask about AAA and AA quality corporate bends. The salesman suggested a bond type mutual fund. He premised 10 per cent with tax-free withdrawals and said a person in my circumstances would be better off with the fund. A. And, incidentally, so would

If you put $10,000 into some triple A bonds you would pay a commission somewhere between $25 and $50. If you buy $10,000 worth of the bond fund, the commission will come to $440. O.K. — salesmen have to live, too.

But what's this malarkey about a "promised 10 per cent" and just what is a "tax-free withdrawal"? Where do you pay a tax when you withdraw your own money? Interest withdrawn would be taxable.

Now that I've worked off a bit of temper I can take time to point out that it's a good bond fund, that for the extra $400 or so of commission (plus a continuing annual fee of about ½ of I per cent) you will get professignal management of your funds, and safekeeping of your securities. You can get a monthly income check. And you can take your money out at any time — at no commission, at current asset value, which means your money is subject to bond market fluctuations, just as it would be if you invested it

So it all boils down to your paying a few hundred extra dellars of buying commission. plus the annual management fee for a service which may well be worthwhile if you don't want to do the investing and safekeeping and mangement

All I want is that you understand what you are paying for what you are getting.

.lobless Figure Credibility Questioned EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of four columns about the criticism of official government employment figures

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Cri-licism of the government's official employment statistics is growing among the profes-sionals who use them, with some openly claiming the extent of job distress is understated by many hundreds of thousands, even millions.

If true, the consequences are almost immeasurably vast, distorting economic planning, government policy decisions, political strategy revenue. sharing and prospects for the jobless themselves.

The statistics have defenders too, but the claims by some critics appear to be so telling that the general credibility of the monthly figures could be severely damaged.
Strong sentiment exists among some economists for a high-level review of concepts and procedures, and it appears to be growing.

Although he defends the as sound, Julius Shiskin, the commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, is among those seeking a review. He said the matter is now at the White House for consideration. Also seeking a review is Prof.

Robert A. Gordon, who headed the most recent study of the job figures — the Committee to Appraise Employment and Unemployment Statistics. It was established by President John Kennedy in 1961.

Gordon, who completed today his term as president of the American Economic Association, observes that hundreds of millions of dollars in revenue sharing is distributed on the basis of local job figures that cannot be fully trusted.

Much of the general criticism is centered on interpretations used in formulating the official jubless rate figure, but it extends far beyond that to include the techniques employed and the accuracy of the raw data.

The BLS itself notes that in most of 1975 more than 1.1 million jobless Americans were seluded from both the labor force and the unemployment figures because they were discouraged and not actively seeking lobs at survey time. In addition, many hundreds of thousands of people in temgovernment projects, who would have been counted as jobless a decade ago. were considered employed because of changes in standards, one of which - in 1965 appears never to have been anunced publicly. These factors, and one other definitional change, would have pushed the 9.2 per cent peak of unemployment, reached last May, to near 11 per cent, and November's 8.3 per cent rate ose to 10 per cent. Prof. Charles C. Killingsworth of Michigan State University, an esteemed authority on labor, contends that even some so-called experts are maware of statistical deficiencies, and thus compound the impact. One common mistake, for example, is to attribute a declining jobless rate during the late 1960s to the effect of fiscal and monetary policy, when in fact much of the decline result ed from definitional changes and other factors.

One of these factors was a military draft that took 900,000 young men out of the labor force directly, and, says Killings-worth, "drove thousands between 100,000 and 200,000 at one point — into schools."

Econometric model makers, who construct numerical equations of the economy and how it interacts, erroneously assumed the changes were caused solely by fiscal-monetary policy, and thus reached misleading conclusions.

Similar errors are being made again today, he said. From a recession low point last March, the work force has expanded by 1.5 million jobs. Even academics and government officials tend to think of these jobs as market-generated.

The fact, says Killingsworth, is that one-third of the improvement has been in publicly supported programs supported by federal funds to help provide work for the unemployed during economically difficult times.

These jobs have nothing to do with economic recovery and expansion, but they are in-

Better Check Your Van Before Driving Away

HAYS, Kan. (AP) - It took two tries and 50 miles of driving to convince him, but a Colby, Kan, man was finally persuaded Sunday that he had left his wife and daughter behind at a stop near Ellsworth, authorities, said. Highway patrol troopers stopped Terry Schneider in Russell, after receiving a call from Mrs. Schneider saying that her husband had left her and her daughter behind when he drove from the highway stop. According to the patrol, Schnelder told officers the first time he was stopped that he had not let anyone off and continued driving westward on Interstate 70. The troopers again stopped Schneider near Toulon, between Russell and Hays. He told them his wife and daughter were in the back of the van asleep. After checking and finding his family missing from the van. Schneider drove back to the highway stop to get them.

terpreted that way," he said. More distortions occur in seasonally adjusting figures, critics say. Shiskin concedes there have been difficulties with the seasonal factor, designed to remove effects recurring events, such as Christmas, from the overall trend.

Critics also claim the popularly used jobless rate doesn't really measure the full extent of underemployment, which includes those working part-time, temporarily or beneath their skills.

The common theme that unites all critics is that if the jobless figures do not in fact reflect reality, then neither do the very important business and government decisions made with them as the basis.
